Adolescent Short-term Assessment and Treatment Program (ASTAT)

Minnesota Mental Health Clinics offer a 5-7 week short-term intensive outpatient program for adolescents age 13 to 18 that is designed to:

- Prevent hospitalization
- Prevent out-of-home placement
- Maintain school attendance
- Stabilize adolescents and their families

ASTAT utilizes Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) with Dialectical Behavioral Therapy (DBT) components that teach adolescents skills to better cope with life stressors.

Initial assessments are scheduled within three business days and are utilized to determine appropriate placement.

Each session consists of two parts: skills teaching and process time. Process time allows each group member to discuss how they can apply skills in their own particular situations. Practical application and generalization of skills is emphasized. These groups also offer an opportunity for members to give support and feedback to each other.

Family assessment: A meeting will be set up with a family therapist while adolescents are in the program. This services as an assessment of the family functioning and aids us in supporting the family. The family will work with the family therapist while they are in ASTAT as a way to help generalize skills and focus on how to support the family through the process.

Five Skills Sets Include:

1. Relationships to create effective relationships.
2. Emotions to reduce mood swings.
3. Stress Management to reduce impulsive and self-harming behaviors.
4. Cognitions to increase self-awareness and gain insight.
5. Communication to increase healthy communication and social skills.
